

Secure Communication Solutions

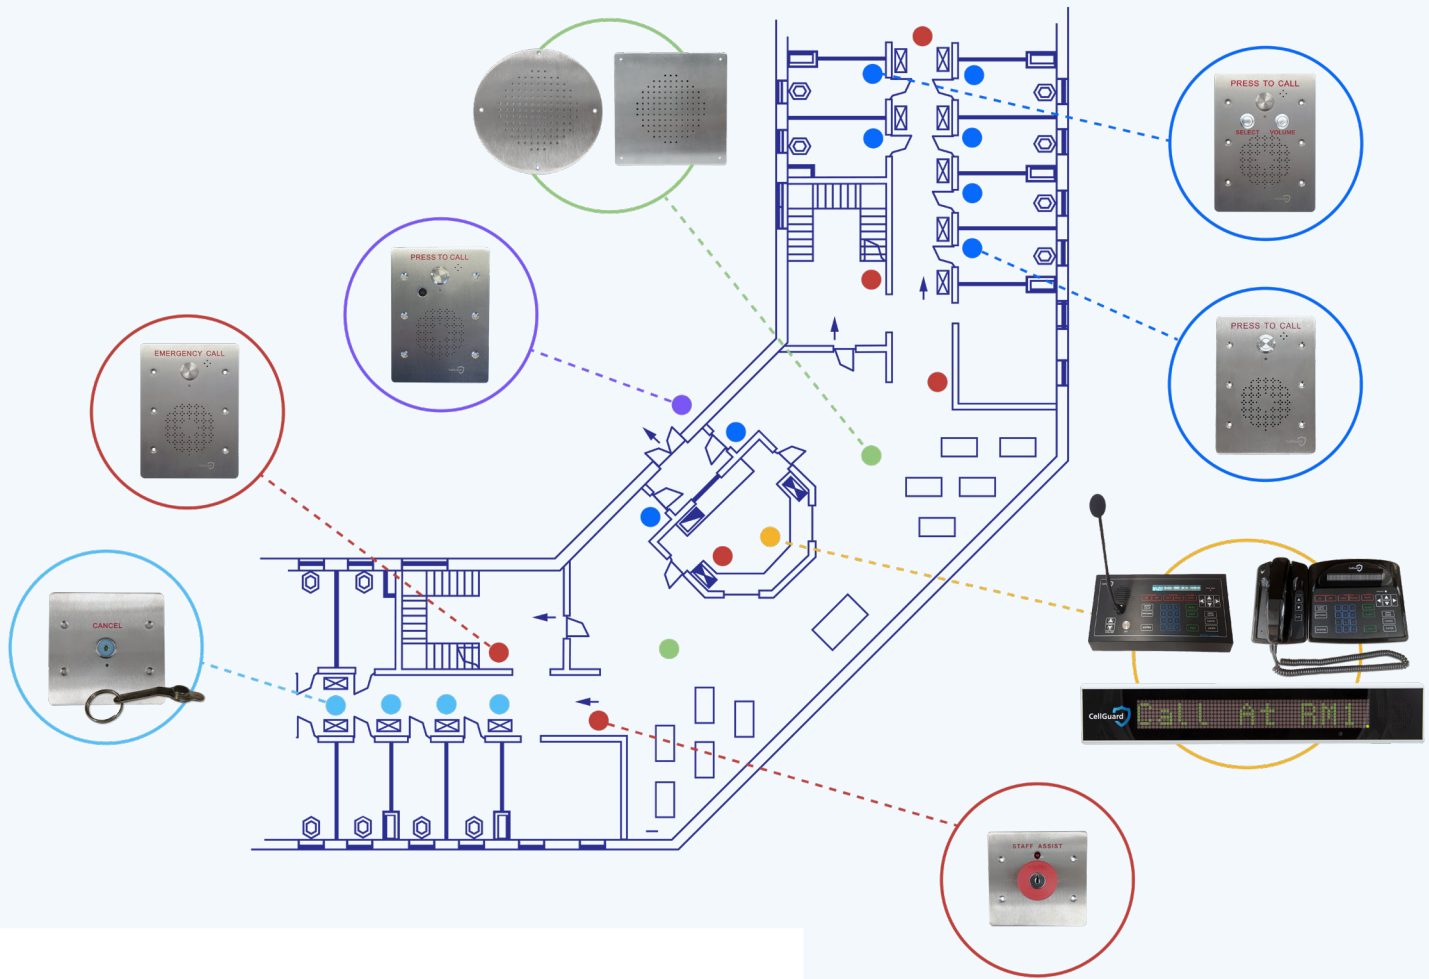

CellGuard is a proudly Australian owned and operated company. Our diverse team is dedicated to the development and production of specialised Intercom and Public Address IP based solutions for life critical systems and secure facilities.

Through continuous innovation of our technology over three decades, we offer lifetime system backwards compatibility to protect your investment. This ensures that your facility has our ongoing support and is future proofed for expansions and upgrades.

We recognise the unique purpose and challenges across different industries and regions. We work with local and international stakeholders both within the government and private sectors to offer a flexible and customisable system to meet the required specifications of each individual facility.

Our Products and Services

CellGuard Intercoms, Call-points and Public Address (PA) are suitable for a variety of communication solutions with a range of customisable options. Our flexible software and configuration settings allow for individual and system functions and features to meet any range of specification requirements. Our unique distributed IP system architecture provides native redundancy and the high availability required to support life critical systems and secure facilities.

- We offer a range of durable products specifically designed for facility management and the electronic security of physically and acoustically harsh environments with minimalist maintenance requirements. Our solutions have been designed to ensure a high level of integrity for user safety, accountability, supervision and management.
- The Intercom Stations are built to last and packed with customised security features and PA functionality. Our applications are flexible and suitable for Room, Cell, Medical, Music, Door, Video, Gate, Bollard, Help and Emergency points. CellGuard also has a real-time ID tagging system amalgamated to the intercom for superior utility.
- We provide a wide range of professional support services related to design, engineering, development, manufacturing, commissioning, customisation, training and maintenance to offer the best long-term solution for our clients.

Integration

We design our solutions to support secure IP networks and interface with other communication technologies. Our ability to integrate with other systems on both High-Level and Low-Level Interfaces allow us to provide flexible end-to-end Communications Solutions.

- Our Intercom and PA IP based solutions interface with electronic security technologies like CCTV, Access Control and Security Management Systems to provide the end user with a reliable, flexible and seamless Communication System.

- CellGuard has developed its own unique technology on distributed system architecture which has been custom designed for robust system redundancy and high availability needs in secure and life-critical IP networks and systems.
- Our systems empower users with safe and reliable technology with advanced security features and support industry leading redundancy solutions.
