The case for business sustainability is clear —cut costs, get ahead of competitors and importantly, help the environment. Queensland businesses embedding sustainability as a core part of their business are already capitalising on opportunities to improve profits, motivate employees and expand market opportunities.

A sustainable business is resilient and adaptable to a changing and challenging business climate. The community now looks to the sustainability features of products and organisations when making business decisions—making the case for progression to a sustainable enterprise clear and compelling.

During a 2 hour face to face workshop, CCIQ ecoBiz, in partnership with the Queensland Government will provide an overview of the ecoBiz program and how your business can become more efficient by using the program's Business Sustainability Roadmap, as well as using the seven principles of eco-efficiency.
